BY A STAFF REPORTER

COMMUNITY TIMES: Apart from sound knowledge about the subject, a student must develop the self confidence to face and survive in the extremely competitive market, GT Resident Editor, Shree Mallikarjun Gupta Ray said here on Friday.

"It is important to know about your subject thoroughly for that, one has to develop interest in the subject and do in-depth study to understand it. Acquiring knowledge can only help in getting success, which is a long term success. For a long term success, one needs to understand the subjects which will be required during practical applications," Gupta Ray said. He was speaking after giving directions by the staff of Dr. Manoj Kumar to Shree Mallikarjun College, Chennai. According to the chairman given to GT Editor, he said for his "effective" writing, creating new articles, requiring new information and verbal achievements as the Editor of Community Times.

"Thinking the college for the future, GT Editor said that one needs to be a career leader or a paid market to be successful in life. What is needed is a sound understanding of the market and determination to succeed against all odds.

"I always feel special to see the same staff in a plaid mental that that does not mean that others who have not topped the examination don't have the capability to be successful in life. I have been an average student during my entire academic career. But when I have done well now it is with passion. One ought to be passionate about what he or she does because only then you will have success and the energy to work hard," he said.

Urging the college students to have self confidence in themselves, the Editor said it is imperative not to have failure and have the self confidence to face the world.

"In today's highly competitive market, one needs to develop and convey his or her unique selling proposition (USP). We are all glorified monkeys who are willing to get jobs or to sell our products or services as entrepreneurs. Unless we have self-confidence, we won't be able to convince our potential employers and customers about our USP. This may lead to loss of job or business. Don't feel shy to speak out. Make yourself heard loud and clear," he said.

Further appreciating the college for teaching "gender equality" to its students, the GT Editor said that his newspaper has been largely successful in recent times because of its hardworking female staff.

"You must know that respect is contagious and is demanded. If you want others to respect you, you have to show that respect first. Instead of complaining with women, try to learn from them. While making professional under extreme pressure and ability to achieve extreme goals are some of the traits of men, but men will benefit by imitating," he concluded.

Head of the Department of Sociology, Dr. Arvind Haldankar took charge of the session with a brief introduction on research skills. He further mentioned that Dr. Nadkarni's lecture is the second visiting lecture organised by the Department in the area of understanding research. Dr. Haldankar spoke about the formidable association and Memorandum of Understanding between the Department of Sociology and Sangath during the last one year. The memorandum of understanding is one of the most functional one, he added.

Principal Dr. Manoj Kamat, introduced and offered a cordial welcome to the visiting speaker Dr. Abhijit Nadkarni. Dr. Kamat presented a sapling to the guest as a token of appreciation and love. He applauded the contribution of the Sangath team and the Department of Sociology in initiating and effectively undertaking the Community Wellness Programme in Canacona with a special emphasis on mental health.

Speaker Dr. Abhijit Nadkarni gains a reputation of working as a Consultant Psychiatrist, co-founder and Director of the Addictions Research Group at Sangath and an Associate Professor in Global Mental Health at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. He highlighted some preliminary requirements that entail any research work. The lecture provided important research inputs for the students doing project work under the Bachelor of Arts programme. Dr. Abhijit Nadkarni while elucidating on the introduction to Study Design referred to research as a systematic method consisting of enunciating the problem, formulating a hypothesis, collecting the facts and reaching certain conclusions either in the form of solutions towards the concerned problem or in certain generalisations for some theoretical formulation. It involves an inquiry into the nature of, the reasons for, and the consequences of any particular set of circumstances. He further elaborated the importance of research methodology in gathering materials, arranging participation in field work, training in techniques for the collection of data appropriate to particular problems and in recording evidence, sorting it out and interpreting it.

Dr. Nadkarni also explained the qualities of good research. A good research he said, does not rule out the possibility of creative thinking, but it certainly rejects the use of guessing and intuition in arriving at conclusions. A good research is guided by rules of logical reasoning, as logical reasoning makes research more meaningful. Thirdly, a good research should be empirical in the sense that it should deal with real situations and concrete data that provides a validated results.

The workshop opened up to a healthy interaction with the speaker through a discussion session. Dr. Arvind Haldankar once again thanked the guest for his informative lecture. Lastly, Ms Charlotte D'mello, student of sociology of third year Bachelor of Arts class proposed a vote of thanks to the guest, Principal, Head of the department and students on behalf of college and the Department of Sociology.

Five faculty members and 112 students attended the workshop.

Objectives of the workshop:

1. The training aimed to increase gender awareness among participants
2. To help challenge discriminatory practices and inculcate inclusive environment

Activity/Process: This workshop aimed at making students aware of gender as social construction. It aimed to raise awareness among participants about issues related to gender.

Themes covered:

1. Gender and Sex: Understanding the difference between gender and sex. To unlearn the different social constructs of gender.
2. Gender based discrimination and Violence: this discussion included challenging various forms of discrimination such as stereotypes, emotional and physical abuse and understanding the manifestations of these in everyday lives
3. Gender equality: This discussion was centered on the ideas of equality and need for it. It also discussed the various ways of how inclusion and equality can be practiced in our lives. This session raised awareness among students about gender discrimination and the need for challenging the same.

Firstly, Dr Arvind Haldankar Head Department of Sociology introduced the theme of the workshop. Principal Dr. Manoj Kamat welcomed and introduced the speaker Smt. Prachi Prabhu and emphasized the need to debate and discuss issues concerning gender in the Indian society. Soon after the welcome, the speaker dealt with issues such as Gender trouble and gender inequality arising out of it. She explained as to how society looks at men and women differently and in turn also attribute roles in distinct manner. Furthermore, the students learnt about the basic distinction between sex and gender. While sex refers to biologically properties, gender is to be understood as a socially constructed variable. The distinction between the two was deliberated with a multiple illustrations. Ms Prabhu posed some fundamental questions before the students of how people negotiate with our lives in shaping our experiences in determining the idea of gender. She spoke about the process of socialization handled by agencies such as family, school, community, office, media, religion and division of labour.

Secondly, the speaker discussed male domination and the concomitant gender discriminatory practices resulting in violence against women. It is evident from this fact that women face more problems than men in the Indian society. The LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender) community is yet another social component which is more vulnerable to problems. Violence against women in any form is an offence and gender discrimination is not to be viewed as women issue but a human issue, remarked Ms Prachi. Principal Dr. M. S. Kamat introduced and welcomed the speakers, Ms Donna Noronha and Ms Madhuri Marathe. He also posed a cordial welcome to the students and trustee Dr. Dhillon Dessai and Ms Shreyas Kamat from Sangath on the occasion. Dr. Kamat called for a need to deliberate on the theme as there is a rising concern in the death cases resulting out of suicide. Life is valuable and worthwhile even though we may not feel so, he added. Dr. Dhillon Dessai too expressed a few instances of the problem drawing inferences from close quarters.

The resource persons engaged at length on the problem of suicide and suggested several ways of preventing it. Ms Donna lamented, "People who think of committing suicide do not actually want to. It is their desperate cry for help and they just want someone to reach out to them. They need to know it is not the solution to the problems they are facing. With a little bit of love, hope and sensitivity we can help someone and prevent them from ending their life".

Furthermore, Donna briefed on the warning signs one needs to be aware of persons showing suicidal tendencies such as talking about suicide, death and/or no reason to live, being preoccupied with death and dying, withdrawal from friends and/or social activities, having a recent severe loss or threat of a significant loss, experiencing significant changes in behaviour, losing interest in hobbies, work, school etc., preparing for death by making out a will and final arrangements, giving away prized possessions, having attempted suicide before, increasing use of alcohol or drugs, unwilling to connect with potential helpers, expressing a sense of hopelessness, etc.

Ms Madhuri then took charge of the session, wherein she suggested the following observations to be considered such as, taking them seriously (many people who have committed suicide have spoken about it at some point or the other), don't leave the person alone, inform the person's nearest family members, show them that you care, make them understand that their life is important, be understanding towards them and don't judge them, keep all harmful items away from the person, try and convince them to seek professional help, keep in constant touch with the person and help them to get their life back together. She added, 'for people feeling hopeless or getting suicidal thoughts, they need to talk to someone they trust about their problem or visit the nearest counsellor or doctor preferably a psychiatrist. They need to give themselves time to get better, spend some time in prayer, make a list of their strengths and focus on them.

The COOJ team informed the students of Helpline no. 0832-2252525 available from Monday to Friday between 3:00 pm to 7:00 pm. The session brought in a lot of awareness and alert among the students as the resource persons enacted role plays with the students.
