Quenching thirst in Coligao has become everyday battle

A drought-like situation prevails in tribal inhabited areas of Canacona taluka's Coligao village every winter. But with no pre-dawn showers this year so far, the scarcity of water this year has become even more acute, leaving the people and animals at nature's mercy. SHANTHINI GOPIN RAY

Scarcity of water has become a daily battle for the people of Coligao village in Canacona taluka. The situation is even more acute this year as there have been no pre-dawn showers, which usually bring some relief to the parched land. The people are forced to dig wells and collect water from distant sources. The situation is particularly dire for the tribal population who live in the hilly areas of the village. They have no access to public water supply and are completely dependent on natural sources. The lack of water is affecting the health of both humans and animals. Many people are suffering from dehydration and skin diseases. The animals are also showing signs of distress. The people are desperate for rain to ease their suffering. They are holding prayers and performing rituals to bring about a change in the weather. The government has not yet taken any effective measures to address the problem. The people are calling for immediate action to provide them with drinking water.

What to watch: The situation in Coligao is a stark reminder of the impact of climate change on the environment. It highlights the need for sustainable water management practices and the importance of conserving water resources. The government should take steps to improve the water supply infrastructure in such areas and provide relief to the affected population.

What to do: The people of Coligao can take several steps to cope with the water scarcity. They can use water-saving techniques such as drip irrigation and mulching. They can also collect rainwater for domestic use. The government should provide financial assistance to the people to help them with the cost of water collection. It should also consider building more public water supply schemes in such areas.

More news: The water scarcity in Coligao is not an isolated incident. It is a common problem in many parts of Goa. The government should take a holistic approach to address the issue and ensure that all the people have access to clean drinking water.

More news: The water scarcity in Coligao is a serious problem that needs to be addressed. The government should take immediate action to provide relief to the affected population. The people should also take steps to conserve water and protect the environment.

Brief Report

As a part of Coastal Regulation Zone, a survey was conducted by the Department of Geography in the coastal region of Canacona starting from Pollem to Cola region which include around 10 beaches. The survey was conducted to understand coastal areas mapped in CRMP and suggest rectification if any from Civil Society point of view. Hence the Department of Geography in association with Ami Goenkar, an NGO, conducted survey of the coastal areas between 28th and 30th August by using Epi-collect5 app and submitted the data to the concerned. 40 Geography students were trained in due course of time to conduct the survey.

NEVER ENDING STRUGGLE FOR BASIC AMENITIES AT VAVURLA

Just after more than two and a half decades of free Goa the famed backing from institutions at various periods has customised the multiple aspects of life. The nature of the life of a rural resident is not only due to the lack of basic amenities but also due to the lack of proper infrastructure. The lack of proper infrastructure has highlighted the dark side of the village. They are still struggling with lack of basic amenities. An elderly health centre, no school, water supply is not working and lack of primary school amongst others. WRITER: MURUGA SIVA, Photos by ANISH KAIL

Poinguinim villagers remember their fallen bravehearts

13 years ago on October 2, 2009 when the country was celebrating Ganesh Jayant, heavy rains followed by flash floods narrowed some of the remote villages in Chitradurga taluka, damaging houses and crops. In one such village named Panchgiri two villagers - Suresh Panchgiri and Samresh alias Babuli Mutale laid down their lives while trying to prevent women and children from getting washed away in the floods. While the Panchgiris still mourn the loss of their two brave warriors, they try continuously to remember the fun fondly and seek inspiration from their selfless act, reports SHASHANT GUPTA RRT, P.O. Brief Report : Social Awareness during COVID-19 Pandemic

Adversity borne out of Corona pandemic in the summer months in India opened several possibilities for the individuals and institutions to be sensible and conscious about societal needs. Rising on the occasion, the NSS Unit contributed positively to reach the remotest area of the Canacona taluka with the message of Stay Home Stay Safe. Various form of activities were undertaken during the lockdown period by the volunteers by following the guidelines of conveyed by the NSS Directorate through Regional Directorate and NSS Cell of Goa University. All the NSS volunteers (T - 258, M - 100, F - 158) took part in the awareness activities started from 21st March 2020 primarily through social media.

Primarily through WhatsApp, volunteers created awareness about the menace of Corona Virus in the locality by spreading reliable information about the virus and reported the people's response to NSS Cell of Goa University through Programme Officers despite having difficulty in mobile network. Volunteers also made posters and created videos to disseminate information and to sensitize the community.

In the drive of making people aware of the COVID-19 pandemic, volunteers registered themselves on Integrated Government Online Training (IGOT) through DIKSHA app and sought valid information about Corona Virus to be shared with people of the locality. Volunteers also downloaded Aarogya Setu app launched by the Central Government to combat COVID-19 spread.
